Retinal diseases are a leading cause of blindness and visual impairment. Our research focuses on understanding the molecular and cellular mechanisms of retinal disease and developing new treatments. We are currently studying the role of genetic factors in retinal disease and the potential of gene therapy as a treatment option. Our research also focuses on the development of new diagnostic tools and imaging techniques to improve the early detection and diagnosis of retinal disease. We are currently studying the role of retinal pigment epithelial cells in retinal disease and the potential of stem cell therapy as a treatment option.
